 Tossgreen will celebrate its Grand Opening on Tuesday, Jan. 8.

If adding more healthful options to your diet is part of your New Year's resolution to be more healthy, a new restaurant concept now open on Jacksonville's Southside might help you do just that.

Tossgreen, located at 4375 Southside Blvd. near Jason's Deli, offers custom salads and burritos featuring organic, local and seasonal ingredients.

The fast-casual restaurant allows customers choose from a selection of chef-designed salads or burritos – or they build their own, choosing from dozens of toppings, proteins, dressings and more.

Owner Manali Patel plans to source many of his ingredients locally.

"We're in the process of working with farmers to get food directly from their farms," Patel said Thursday by phone.

In addition to locally-grown ingredients, Tossgreen offers 100 percent natural chicken, Patel said, plus a variety of dressings that include gluten-free, oil-free and dairy-free options.

Build your own salad, choosing from iceberg, romaine, spinach, mesclun and arugula. The $5.99 price includes five free toppings and one of 18 dressing options. Avocado, bacon, boiled eggs, chicken, shrimp, steak and tofu are each available for additional charge, ranging from 99 cents to $1.99.

Or choose from Ancient Greek ($6.99), Caesar ($7.69), Classic Cobb ($8.99), Sunshine Shrimp ($8.29) and other salads.

Burritos start at $5.29, and include your choice of wheat or flour tortilla – or have yours in a bowl. Fill it up with rice, beans or grilled veggies; add a protein (additional charge); then finish with a selection of sauces, salsas and other toppings.

Think Chipotle – but with more ingredient options, offering customers a new experience each time they stop in.

Tossgreen will celebrate its Grand Opening on Tuesday, Jan. 8. From 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. that day, the restaurant will offer customers a free salad or burrito bowl while supplies last.

Tossgreen is open daily at 11 a.m.
